

The Human Body and the Senses

Can you name the different parts of the human body?
Select the correct name from the list given:

Now select which of the five senses each body part is used for.

Can you select which is the main sense used to do each of these activities?

Challenge!

Lots of activities (such as eating food or going for a walk in our local area) use more than one sense.

For example, when you play in the snow you feel how cold and soft it is with your hands, hear it crunch under your feet and you may even taste a snowflake as it falls on your tongue!

Can you think of some more examples and list them below?
